PARIS, July 2, 2008 (AFP) - The German former chief executive of planemaker Airbus, Gustav Humbert, was charged Wednesday with insider trading at parent company EADS, a legal source said.

Humbert was released on bail of 350,000 euros, the source said.

Former EADS chief executive Noel Forgeard and the company's former general manager, Jean-Paul Gut, have already been charged in the probe although both have denied any wrongdoing.
